

STADSKANAAL July 8. 2014: Drymer takes over Sinner Bikes

Last week after intensive conversations with Lawyers Li en van Wieringen, Drymer (Stadskanaal) has reached an agreement, to take over the production and sales of the Mango Velomobile and recumbent trikes from Sinnerbikes.

Due to lagging sales and high development costs Sinnerbikes found themselves in bad weather.

In June 2013 Sinnerbikes started to work alongside Drymer in a new production facility. Conversations to combine the production en sales were already started. Next to that, Sinner was previously shareholder of Drymer.

"We believe in these products" says Eric Vos, director of Drymer: "There are already several clients waiting for Sinner's products at this time".

Together with the employees of Drymer, Sinner and the previous owners of Sinner, Jan and Harma de Vries can the future of these inspiring products stay in Groningen. We are more than happy despite these difficult times and pleased that the employees will stay involved with Drymer for production, development and marketing activities.

Drymer will start the production as soon as possible, to deliver the first Mango's and Comforts before the summer vacation. Our combined expertise and experience will now also be used for all Drymer models.

Agreements will be made with the suppliers of different components for further cooperation. We do understand the some suppliers disappointment however the current products have proved themselves in the market and with this development the products will exist under the name of Drymer.

Drymer has got a good view in the production possibility's and the potential in the market for the products of Sinner nationally and internationally.

The market for alternative personal transportation to compliment or even in some cases replace the car keeps growing. With this new development Drymer and Sinner are able to produce new prototypes en products for the future with this combination of two unique companies and brands.

In closing, as the dutch Director Vos said; "Eind goed – al goed".
